My Fellowship role:

Consultant Fellow – Project Management

Fellowship organization: Peepul - India

Organization's mission:

To transform learning in public schools by increasing student engagement in classrooms and strengthening governance systems.

My background:

I come from a background in education and social impact, with experience across programme design, teacher training, partnership management, and large-scale learning initiatives. Over the past few years, I have worked on projects focused on improving access to meaningful learning opportunities for young people and educators with organizations including UNICEF and UNESCO MGIEP. I am particularly interested in the intersection of education, systems thinking, and implementation.

I joined the LGT Impact Fellowship because...

I believe strong programmes and committed people can create meaningful change, and the fellowship offers the opportunity to contribute to education systems work while learning alongside a diverse cohort of practitioners across sectors and countries.

In my Fellowship role I will...

support work focused on strengthening teaching and learning systems, while bringing experience in programme design and implementation, facilitation, partnerships, and continuous learning grounded in field realities.

I am very excited about...

the opportunity to learn from people working on complex social challenges across contexts, contribute meaningfully to Peepul's mission, and be part of a fellowship community committed to creating lasting social impact.
